

LITERARY NOTES.

Instruction.

Corn v.

The "Volney prize," in the gift of the French Institute, which is noted up to a brilliant distinction that can be conferred for literary research, has this year been awarded to Prof. C. H. C. Muller of University College, London, for his Dictionary of the Palaeozoic.

Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. state that the effort produces also, excepting of course the binning of the "Condensed Classics," has been most successful, many difficulties which, though at last conquered, have delayed the books so far into the summer that probably requires the postponement of publication until the Fall.

Mr. T. Wiltzeker of the Bible House will soon publish a volume of "Thoughts on the History of Revealed Religion," by the venerable Bishop St. John, Kentucky, The Presiding Bishop of the P. E. Church, now, in his 80th year, has written "My Life," "My Sons," "My Epistles," and "About Men and Women," by Dr. Henry.

The Primer of Logic, by Prof. Jevons, about ready at the Apostolick, is spoken of by The Atheneum as a perfectly novel plan. It is free from the technical subtleties which make most logical treatises repulsive to men of minds; and it appears to us admirably adapted to serve both as an introduction to scientific reasoning, and as a guide to sound judgment and reasoning in the ordinary affairs of life."

A Philadelphia firm, John E. Potter & Co., announce an easement of Charlie Ross by his father, who will they will say by subscription. Philanthropy is concerned with business in the same extent that the book "will cost us less than our expenses." Send for catalogues.

BURLINGTON COLLEGE, N. J.—Classical, Scientific, and Military School for Boys.

BOARDING SCHOOL—Music, Drawing, Languages. Classes taught to speak English.

BORDENTOWN FEMALE COLLEGE, N. J.—An excellent school, a college for girls. Send for catalogues.

B. THANY ACADEMY, a Family School with business in the same extent that the book "will cost us less than our expenses." Send for catalogues.

CLAKERIDGE COLLEGE and H. R. Inst., Claverack, N. Y.—2nd year open Sept. 1. 11 months. Tuition $100. Board $15.00. Nominal fees.

EDWARD HALL, Cooperstown.—BOYS will be received for two months from July 10, and have the benefit of selected studies without the full expense of a school. This year, however, the fall term commences Sept. 2. Apply to Mr. G. MORRELL.

D. A. AVERY, Secy Board of Trustees.

CLASSICAL INSTITUTE.—Mrs. Harwood's Select Family School for Young Ladies at Red Bank, the Shrewsbury. Natural development easily encouraged.

GLAVERIDGE COLLEGE and H. R. Inst., Claverack, N. Y.—2nd year open Sept. 1. 11 months. Tuition $100. Board $15.00. Nominal fees.

HENRY WATERS, 110 W. 12th Street, New York.—Wanted, a young man, 18 years old, to teach English, German, French, and business courses for gentlemen. For ladies, College Course, with the Recreations. Primary Department.

ALONZO FLACK, Ph. D. Pres.

COUNTRY HOME, a lady, experienced in teaching, to take a child into her family for the summer, or longer period. Location, healthy, and near railroads. Through instruction, and kind, Christian care, in a pure home. References given, and requested.

Apply to Mr. Fox Tracy, one-volume: "The Auto-Examen," discourses and treatises by Edwards, Smalley and others, one volume, and the works of Dr. Nathaniel Emerson, six volumes.

Mr. Alfred Webb is engaged upon "A Compendium of Irish Biography." The only books of the kind relating to Ireland, states The Atheneum are "Will's Lives of Illustrious Irishmen," in six volumes, and "Ryan's Worthies of Ireland," in two volumes. The selection includes the works of Dr. Joseph Bellamy, in two volumes; Thomas Shepherd, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Boston; Dr. S. L. Clegg, in three volumes; "The Great Awakening," by Rev. Dr. Tracy, one-volume; "The Auto-Examen," discourses and treatises by Edwards, Smalley and others, one volume, and the works of Dr. Nathaniel Emerson, six volumes.

A Southern gentleman and lady, now living in Boston, have recently been devoting themselves to circulating through the South Charles Sumner's book of "Prophetic Voices Concerning America." It is thought that the dissemination of this book among the youth of the South will do much to make them good patriots. In Boston, we see no signs of the same interest. We have seen no sermons to the same extent, including Longfellow, Garrison, Douglass, and others, and over 1,000 copies have already been circulated there, probably among the educational institutions. This is the book of which the final proofs were found in Mr. Sumner's desk after his death.

Mr. Welford, apopos of Macaulay's Life, writes to the Scorpio Bookseller: "Some persons' memory of the great historian Rogers among the figures respectable but rapidly diminishing class, the second-hand and old booksellers in London. They still talk of the energy and rapidity of his movements, his rapid decision in the selection or rejection of their wares, and of his always having ready money for what he wanted. I have seen him buy an omnivorous buyer or purchaser of what the trade call 'rubbins,' but in reality what attracted them, material to be got out of the old and well-worn books. It was not that the price of the books of the two great writers in the same taste is Mr. Gladstone, whose inimitability with all the small hook-dealers and their emulo, was equal to that attributed by his biographer to Lord Macaulay."

The Philadelphia firm of J. H. Coates & Co. will be pleased to act as American agents for two reprints of early English literature edited by the Rev. Alex. B. Grosart, which he is about publishing by private subscription. Prof. Henry Morley, Francis T. Paget, George Eliot, William Allis Wright, Prof. Augustus Jessop, Child of Horace, and Prof. Edward D. wedge are among Mr. Grosart's editorial collaborators in this series, which will include new editions of the works of Edmund Spenser, Sir Philip Sidney, Sir Walter Raleigh, and others, based on original researches. The former will be illustrated with a series new portraits on steel, that of Sir Walter Raleigh from an original never before engraved. Historic unpublished portions of the "Tudor" and "Stuart" series, which are now in progress, will be added to the collection, and a collection of English Jacobean poems and squibs, are also comprised in the project. The number of copies is limited.

NOTE DAME OF MARYLAND, COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE FOR YOUNG LADIES, near Baltimore, Maryland, Conducted the School Sept. 1, 1875.

This institution is most conveniently located, 3 miles West of Baltimore, and is provided with every necessary for health and comfort. The course of study is divided into three parts: Moral, Mental, and Physical. The people to whom the education of the two great centers in the same taste is Mr. Gladstone, whose inimitability with all the small hook-dealers and their emulo, was equal to that attributed by his biographer to Lord Macaulay.
